LETTER FROM THE EDITOR
Hello again! We are headed into my favorite season, which is full of many wonderful sights and events: leaves crunching under my feet, children dressed up in Halloween costumes, taking spooky tours, Thanksgiving dinner, and of course, the Lighthouse Challenge of New Jersey!

At last year’s Challenge, I volunteered at Absecon, which was quite a time! I met a lot of people and it was fun to just BE in a lighthouse for a long while. There is a call again for volunteers (see page 3), so if you have the time, it’s certainly worthwhile. This year, I’ll be hitting the road again with several of my friends and my boyfriend, who has barely been to any lighthouses! I’m excited to be able to share my interest and passion with so many people who might not otherwise know about the Challenge.

The holidays will be here before we know it, and if you like Christmas ornaments, have I got one for you! Hallmark is starting a new series this year (and the 1st in a series is always the most valuable, as my mother taught me), called Holiday Lighthouses. The 2012 ornament is decorated with wreaths and bows and Santa is shown trying to climb up the side of the lighthouse. It even lights up! I’m excited to hang it on my tree in a few months. Also, remember that Ways & Means has different Christmas ornaments for sale.

Once again, thank you to everyone who has been helping me put the Beam together. I hope to see everyone at the September meeting and at the Challenge!

Lighthouse Challenge of New Jersey Set for October 20th & 21st

Press Release by Pary Woehlke

The eleven New Jersey lighthouses, two affiliated museums and two lifesaving stations will host the Lighthouse Challenge of New Jersey on the weekend of October 20th & 21st, 2012. Visitors will enjoy the opportunity to tour the state and visit each lighthouse, as well as four other related sites, over the two days. Night climbs will be offered as well at Absecon, Cape May, Sandy Hook, Tinicum, and Tuckerton Seaport Lighthouses. Hours of operation for each of the sites can be found on their individual websites and on the Challenge website www.lighthousechallengenj.org and on www.visitnj.org.

You can begin your journey at any of the lighthouses, museums or lifesaving stations. A souvenir passport will be available for purchase for $1.00. As you visit each site, your passport will be stamped with the individual stamp of each site as proof of your visit. Those who complete the challenge and visit all 15 sites will receive a special award. The Lighthouse Challenge of New Jersey encourages everyone to take advantage of this special weekend to visit these New Jersey treasures, some of which are only open on this weekend. Fees for the lighthouses vary, so please check the website for admission costs. This year, children 11 and under will climb free when accompanied by an adult. The proceeds from the Challenge are used for continuing lighthouse preservation, education and restoration.

The Beam
A NOTE FROM THE COMMUNITY OUTREACH COMMITTEE CHAIR

As we move into fall 2012, the NJLHS Community Outreach season continues and moves toward its wrap-up in late September.

Thanks to the ever-present Mary Catherine Kennedy, reigning “Queen of Community Outreach”, who represented us at so many of our regular events—and the additional events we added to the Community Outreach calendar this year. A special thank you to her for representing us at the special celebration of National Lighthouse Day at Hereford Inlet Lighthouse. NJLHS was well represented with the presence of President Brett Franks, who was a speaker on the slate of presenters for the day.

On September 29th and 30th, the Community Outreach team is about to wrap up the season with a “classic” event—the Ocean County Decoy Show in Tuckerton. In addition to Mary Catherine, sincere thanks to Catherine Klix, Kathy Lanzim, Marty Hudspeth, Sheila Hines, and Carol Winkie for their efforts throughout the year as well.

Looking ahead to 2013 (it can’t possibly be almost 2013!!) it’s never too early to think about participating in the outreach team for next year! As always: volunteers (new and returning) are essential to keep our Society throughout the community. Remember, you don’t need to be a lighthouse “expert” to be part of the team—just willing to discuss our shared interests with event patrons. There’s always someone to “fill in the blanks”. We have an outstanding base of lighthouse knowledge in our membership ranks. Consider joining the Community Outreach team for the 2013 season.

Please feel free to contact me with any info on NJ events where NJLHS might want to be represented.

Social Networking Update

Remember to check out the Society’s presence on Facebook & Twitter! While you’re at it, please recommend that others become our “fans” on Facebook. We’re easy to find: either search the Society name in the search bar on Facebook, or navigate to www.facebook.com/njlhs. I’m happy to report that, we have more than 400 people who “like” our page. If you’re not one of them yet, just look us up and “like us” today. For convenience, I’ve configured our Facebook page so that all of the content posted automatically publishes on the NJLHS account the micro-blog site Twitter. You may find us at www.twitter.com/njlhs or on Twitter by typing @njlhs in the Twitter search field. You can now keep up to date via your smartphone, iPad, and (of course) your notebook or desktop computer.

We also continue to publish notices of our General Membership Meetings to nearly 75 media venues (newspapers/radio/websites) throughout the state, including the New Jersey state libraries network. On this point: due to continued staff cutbacks at various media outlets, we have lost a few of our “good contacts” on our media list. With this in mind, I invite you to contact me if you know of any media outlet/reporter/writer/etc., you feel would like to receive our media notices. I will be happy add anyone to our media distribution list.

Thanks so much everyone…and keep the lights shining!

On August 7th of this year Lighthouses across the country celebrated “National Lighthouse Day,” and in New Jersey several of our beacons held special events to mark the occasion. But this year the Friends Group at Hereford Inlet Lighthouse went all out.

I’m sure many of us missed the occasion coming as it did on a Tuesday this year. And I’m sure most have no idea why August 7th was chosen for this honor. Well it was on this day in 1789, that Congress approved an Act for the establishment and support of lighthouse, beacons, buoys and public piers. In Celebration of the 200th Anniversary of the signing of the Act and the commissioning of the first Federal lighthouse, Congress passed a resolution which designated August 7, 1989 as National Lighthouse Day.

Senator John H. Chafee (Rhode Island) sponsored a joint resolution that was introduced to Congress on April 28, 1988 designating the day of August 7, 1989 as “National Lighthouse Day.” The summary of the resolution stated, “Designates August 7, 1989, as National Lighthouse Day and calls for lighthouse grounds, where feasible, to be open to the public.” The resolution passed the Senate on July 26, 1988 and the House (sponsored by Representative William J. Hughes, New Jersey) on October 21, 1988. President Ronald Reagan signed the Bill into public law (No. 100-622) on November 5, 1988.

Hereford Lighthouse decided to celebrate this year by having the former Congressman and Ambassador Hughes speak at the light this year. Also in attendance was Representative Frank LoBiondo, along with many former lighthouse keepers and local dignitaries. There were speakers from the Coast Guard, the NJ Historic Preservation Office, NJ Travel and Tourism, The Delaware Bay Light Keepers Group and our own New Jersey Lighthouse Society.

I was honored to be asked to speak at the ceremony amidst this esteemed collection of past and present New Jersey leaders in the fight to preserve our lighthouses. It was truly humbling to be allowed to share the stage with these people while standing in the shadow of Hereford Inlet Lighthouse, knowing that 223 years George Washington signed into law the act which would create first federal lighthouse and all those after. My great thanks to Steve Murray and the Friends of Hereford Inlet Lighthouse for inviting NJLHS and myself to be part of this day. The following is the speech I gave.
Good Morning,

As president of the New Jersey Lighthouse Society, I’d like to thank Steve Murray and Friends of the Hereford Inlet Lighthouse for inviting me here today to speak among these distinguished and honored guests. It is a true privilege to address you all as part of this wonderful event.

In preparing for this celebration of National Lighthouse Day, I vacillated back and forth over what to say to you. I wasn’t sure if I should talk about why lighthouses are important in our heritage and our history. Or if I should focus on the efforts made to date in preserving the lights, seeing as we are gathered here at what I consider to be one of the finest examples of that mission. So I decided to ask my five year old son what it was about lighthouses that made them special to him.

As most parents know, five year olds are veritable fountains of true inspiration and guileless responses. He looked at me and kind of quizzically said, “What do you mean, Daddy?” So I clarified myself a bit and said what is it you like best about when you, me and Mommy go to a lighthouse? His response was, “The lighthouse.” And before I could try to focus his answer anymore he added “Seeing it.” He could see that wasn’t the answer I was looking for so he continued with “because it’s the best time.”

So now it was my turn to say what do you mean, Jaden? And without missing a beat he says what most five year olds say “about what?” Five year olds are not what you classify as focused. I told him to forget it and went back to my earlier thoughts on the topic. But as I sat writing about NLHD I went back to what my son had said. And I realized he had summed it up for me in less than ten words. “The lighthouse, seeing it, because it’s the best time.” The wisdom of a five year old.

That is what NLHD is about. Being able to go to these historic and altruistic sentinels of the shoreline. Still having them available to us to go to, and touch and climb and experience. To stand on the gallery deck and stare off into our past. To look at science and technology combined into real state of the art communication before every cell phone company in the world tried to capitalize on that thought.

NLHD is not just a day to remember lighthouses still exist in this world. It isn’t some flippant attempt at commercialism like national corndog day or some such nonsense. NLHD is a tiny stretch of time when we look at manmade monuments to our underlying humanity. What do I mean by that, I mean the lighthouse was built to aid commercial shipping. They were road signs for vessels loaded with cargo to find their direction and a safe passage. They were not conceived as marine rescue. If they were who in their right minds would put so few people manning them. They became something more, something powerful and safe to us by the deeds and selflessness of those who lived with these lights.

Those men and women are almost all forgotten to us but their actions have immortalized the lighthouse as that beacon of hope and salvation. We celebrate the lights for this aspect, not for their original purpose. It is that humanity which these structures have captured. NLHD is also about celebrating the people who have worked tirelessly to preserve and maintain these structures. It’s about countless hours of volunteer time and fund raising activities necessary to keep them open and inviting. It’s about educating and changing public sentiment on historical relevance.

NLHD is tribute to all who believe the noble conviction that compassion for another soul above self preservation is the true spirit of the lighthouse. And preserving these iconic symbols of that spirit, the lighthouse, seeing it, it’s the best time.

Thank you.
Our next meeting will be held on September 22nd at the Samsel Upper Elementary School in the Sayreville School District of NJ (298 Ernston Rd, Parlin, NJ 08859). Hospitality will begin at 11:00 AM with our business meeting commencing at 11:30 AM. Lunch is at 12:30 PM and is on your own to provide. We’ll be having guests for our afternoon events. Students from the school had presented NJLHS with a check for lighthouse preservation last year after our speaker’s bureau had addressed them. The children raised the funds through class activities and in recognition of their efforts NJLHS will be making a special presentation to their teacher and the school. We will be having our own speaker’s bureau members put on the talk they gave to the children in 2011 for all to hear commencing about 1:30 PM. And hopefully anyone considering volunteering as a speaker but somewhat hesitant will see how some of other folks approach this activity and how rewarding it can be. Hope to see all of you there.

For our December meeting we will be heading to the Atlantic City area. The venue is not set yet but we will be holding our Basket Auction and Silent Auction again this year. Anyone wishing to donate a basket or items for a basket contact Anne or Karl Farhinger, please. I know they will greatly appreciate whatever you would care to give. At this meeting we will have our holiday social event and a special surprise event.

Our March meeting will be the photo contest as usual, but remember the twist this year. The winning photos of New Jersey Lighthouses will be used to publish our own NJLHS Calendar for 2014. So as the seasons change get out there and start snapping away! Then your photo might be on everyone’s calendar for a month next year. Location is yet to be decided but we’ll probably return to one of the past venues where we held this meeting previously. Please keep watching the Beam and the web site for additional details.

Five ‘Famous Firsts’ Celebrated at the Twin Lights

From the Twin Lights Historical Society

New Jersey History Buffs Spend the Day On Hallowed Ground

(Highlands, NJ — August 6, 2012) Survey after survey confirms the number-one reason people make the trek to the Twin Lights. It’s the view. However, on Sunday, August 5th, something else drew nearly 600 visitors to the lighthouse.

On Hallowed Ground: Making History at the Twin Lights celebrated five “famous firsts” at the Twin Lights.

Each landmark event was interpreted with its own special exhibit, which included an expert to answer questions and artifacts from the Twin Lights Museum that have never been on public display. Among the stalwart visitors on this muggy Sunday were Congressman Frank Pallone and Senator Joe Kyrillos.

The five famous firsts were America’s first Fresnel lenses, the first commercial wireless broadcast, the first working radar, the first lifesaving station (which was moved up the hill in the 1950s), and the first recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance as America’s official national oath of loyalty. A special On Hallowed Ground booklet was created for the event and distributed to attendees.

Among the experts on hand were Marconi Society Chairman Emeritus Robert Lucky (who manned the Marconi exhibit), Lt. Commander Chuck Gullage, US Coast Guard Ret. (Radar exhibit), and Commander Tim Dring, US Naval Reserve Ret. (Lifesaving exhibit). Guest curator Mariah Stewart, who worked at the Twin Lights this summer as part of the Wake Forest University Museum Anthropology Program, interpreted the Pledge of Allegiance exhibit.

The most popular features of the day were the two 30-minute programs, which brought together all of the experts for a rapid-fire presentation on the cultural importance of the five events. Both lectures took place in the air-conditioned Twin Lights auditorium. Not surprisingly, both lectures were standing room only.

“We couldn’t have been more pleased with the turnout,” says Mary Jo Kenny, President of the Twin Lights Historical Society. “With the Highlands Clamfest down the hill and the Sandy Hook beaches across the bridge, we had lots of competition. Yet even with a robust crowd, the event still had an intimate feel.”

Among the highlights of the afternoon was the dedication of the Twin Lights’ new Liberty Pole. Two Coast Guard cadets did the honors, raising a 44-star flag like the one run up the original Liberty Pole at the 1893 Pledge of Allegiance ceremony. Senator Kyrillos then led the crowd in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance—first, as it was written in 1893, and again, in its modern version. Next, Peter Bellomo, an opera singer who performs at Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center, stepped to the microphone and sang the National Anthem, followed by God Bless America. Bellomo also performed during the day with the Uptown Getdowns, who provided musical entertainment for the 500-plus visitors.
